

Presentation of research findings

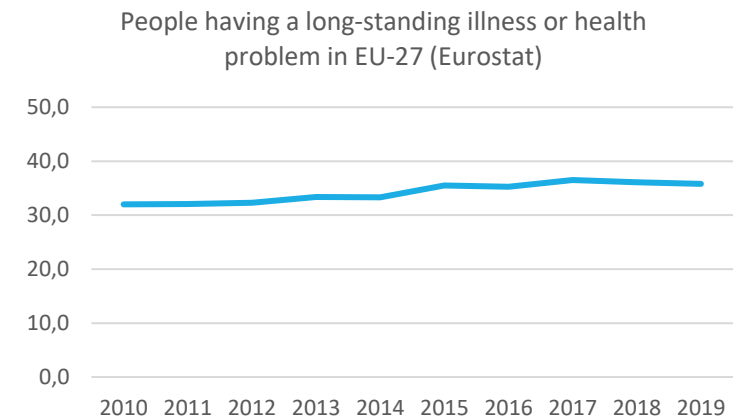

Shaping return to work policy:
Current involvement and future potential of EU social dialogue

Nina Lopez-Uroz & Leonie Westhoff (CEPS)

Why do return to work policies matter in Europe?

- $\frac{1}{4}$ of the working population in the EU reports living with a chronic disease.
- The prevalence of chronic diseases is a significant challenge to labour market integration, with negative consequences for both individuals and society.

Policy context at EU level

- “Workers have the right to a working environment adapted to their professional needs and which enables them to prolong their participation in the labour market.”
European Pillar of Social Rights, Principle 10c.
- The EU does not directly intervene in return to work policy. However, it is relevant to two EU policy areas:

Occupational safety and health policy

Social inclusion and equal treatment

Stakeholder Involvement in EU Return to Work Policy

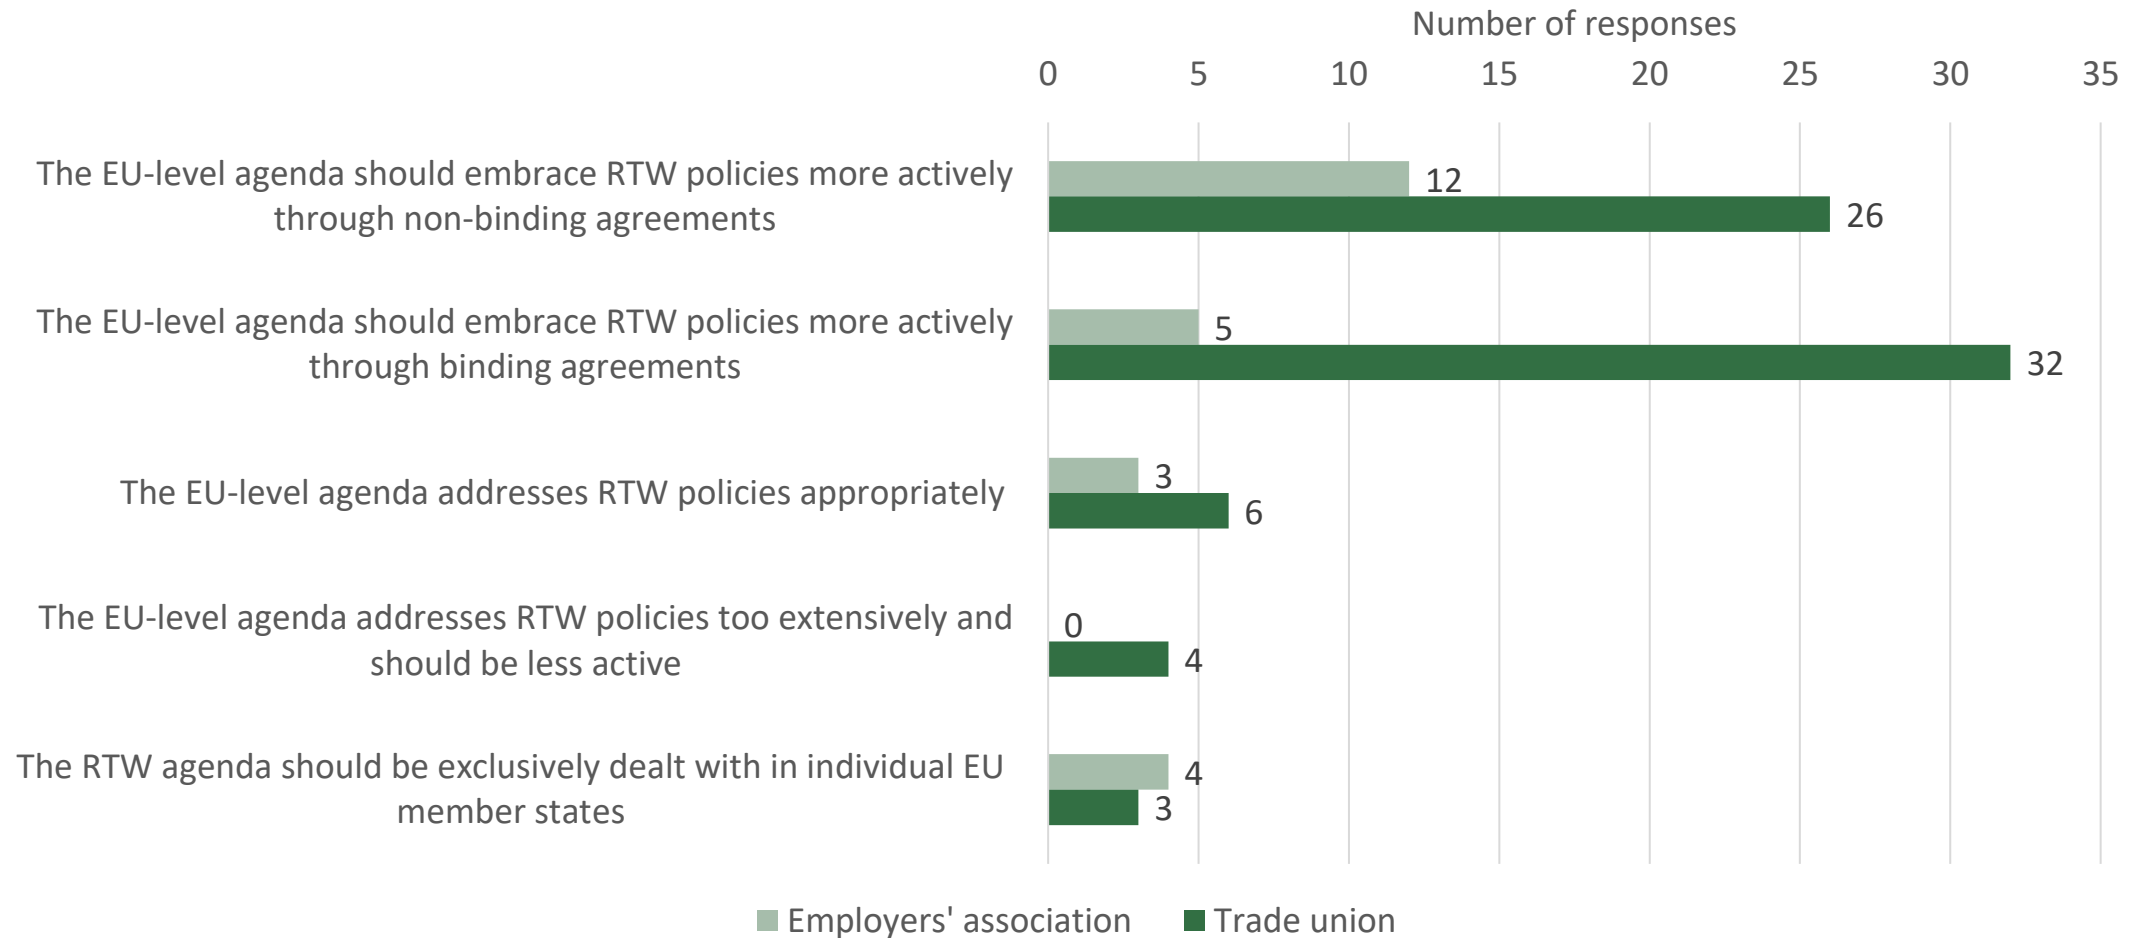

- All stakeholders agree that return to work is a relevant issue within the EU context
- However, engagement with the issue on the side of European institutions and social partners has been limited
- Patient organisations and non-governmental organizations are key stakeholders
- Interaction between stakeholders on return to work is rare

National Social Partner Involvement in Return to Work

Source: REWIR Social partner survey (N=63). RTW = Return to Work. Don't know/cannot evaluate excluded from graph. Answers shortened to ease reading.

National social partners' views on the EU return to work agenda

Source: REWIR Social partner survey (N=69). RTW = Return to Work. Don't know/cannot evaluate excluded from graph. Answers shortened to ease reading.

EU return to work policy: Future perspectives

EXCHANGE OF BEST PRACTICES

AWARENESS-RAISING

DATA COLLECTION

POLICY
RECOMMENDATIONS

Concrete legislation and other policy measures more appropriate at national and sectoral level

Social partner involvement in return to work at different levels

EU

Awareness-raising, exchange of best practices and lobbying

Member state

Influencing legislation and negotiating binding agreement

Sectoral

Considering sector-specific issues

Company

Assisting with practical implementation

Conclusions

The labour market integration of individuals suffering from chronic diseases is a social and economic challenge

The EU can play an important role in shaping return to work policy but targeted actions in this field have remained underdeveloped

Social partners can play an important role in advancing EU action on this issue

CELSI

Thank you for your attention!